MONTANA STATE (4-4/0-1) at Long Beach State (4-5), CS Fullerton (5-6)

The Bobcats put the academic rigors of finals week behind them Saturday, traveling to the West Coast for contests with a pair of Big West Conference foes that have yet to lose at home this year, each featuring standout guards. MSU faces Long Beach State on Saturday. Dan Monson's second 49er squad is dramatically improved, led by explosive guard Donovan Morris, who averages 17.7 points a game. Morris has led LBSU in scoring seven times this season, and scored 14 in MSU's 74-56 home win over Long Beach State last season. Two days later, on Monday, the Bobcats face a rematch with Cal State Fullerton and explosive guard Josh Akognon, who averages 25.5 points a game, fourth in the nation. MSU topped the Titans 74-60 in Bozeman on December 9.

Last Time Out - Washington State 70, MSU 51

December 13, 2008 – Key Arena/Seattle, WA (7,848)

Washington State shot 58% from the floor in each half and held Montana State to just 33% shooting, as the Cougars raced past MSU 70-51 in Seattle. The Cougars jumped out to a 30-18 halftime lead over MSU, limiting the Bobcats to just 25% shooting before the intermission. Four WSU players scored in double-digits, with MSU's Danny Piepoli and Cougar Klay Thompson sharing game-high honors with 14 points. WSU out-rebounded the Bobcats 36-to-20. After Erik Rush opened the game by connecting on one of two free throws for the Bobcats, Daven Harmeling nailed back-to-back three-pointers to stake Washington State to a 6-1 lead. The Cougars would never look back. Divaldo Mbunga's jumper at 14:33 of the first half brought the Bobcats to within three at 14-11, but Washington State's 10-2 run gave the Cougars command. MSU got to within single digits once just before halftime, and never came closer than 10 in the second half. Rush finished with 12 points for MSU, 10 from the charity stripe, the only Bobcat other than Piepoli to finish with more than 10 points.

SCOPING THE BOBCATS

Picking on the Big Boys

Before the calendar flipped to December, Montana State beat a pair of teams from power conferences. The Bobcats upended Colorado in Boulder on November 18, then toppled Oregon State in Corvallis on November 26. By doing so, MSU became the first current member of the Big Sky with wins over a Pac 10 and a current Big 12 school in the same season.

Three After Three

MSU has hit at least one three-pointer in its last 414 games. From 1986 to late '92-93 MSU rolled up a 197-game streak and has a three in 611 of the last 612.

Defensive Superlatives

Montana State's team success on the defensive end this year begins with outstanding individual effort. While Boise State, Oregon State and Washington State each topped the 50% shooting mark, MSU has held two opponents to under 40%. Will Bynum has emerged as a leader on the defensive end for MSU, collecting 16 steals, the most in the Big Sky Conference. Divaldo Mbunga has blocked 14 shots this year, and his 1.9 blocks per game also leads the league.

Defending the Paint

Senior center Divaldo Mbunga has unrelentingly defended the inside for the Bobcats this year. The Angola native is sixth in the Big Sky with 6.4 rebounds a game, and leads the Big Sky with 1.9 blocked shots per contest.

Charity Chatter

Montana State's 15-for-17 performance from the free throw line at Washington State - fueled by Erik Rush's 10-for-12 showing - lifts the Bobcats from eighth to sixth in the Big Sky in free throw percentage (67.1%). MSU led the league in free throw shooting a year ago, but spent the early part of this season among the Big Sky's bottom two, along with NAU, who also is regularly at the top of the league.

Not-so-Golden Coast

The Bobcats have lost five straight games in the state of California over the past two seasons. MSU lost at Sacramento State, UC Santa Barbara and Fresno State last year, and at Sacramento State and Fresno State in 2006-07.

Tale of the Turnover

After a fluky two-game stretch in which the Bobcats turned the ball over 36 times, Washington State forced just six Bobcat turnovers, the lowest mark by an MSU squad in Brad Huse's two-plus seasons. On the season, MSU turns the ball over just 13.6 times a game, the third-lowest mark in the Big Sky.

Just Getting Acquainted

The Bobcats have struggled at times with the newer members of the Big Sky. In the 21st century, MSU is 18-21 against the teams admitted to the league since '96-97.

Twentysomethings

Will Bynum was not lauded as a scorer upon arriving at Montana State, but he has put together a pair of 20-point performances this season. Bynum scored 23 at Oregon State and 21 at Eastern Washington. Bobby Howard has three 20-pointers, including a 24-point game, which is tied for sixth in the Big Sky this year.

Extra Work

After not playing an overtime game since the spring of 2005, Montana State has taken a pair of teams to OT in '08-09. MSU beat both Colorado and Oregon State in road overtime games. Here is a look at MSU in overtime in the last 15 years...

Game #6 - Eastern Washington 61, MSU 55

December 6, 2008 – Reese Court/Cheney, WA (2,257)

CHENEY, Wash. -- Eastern Washington forced 19 Montana State turnovers and limited the Bobcats to 29% shooting in the second half, winning the Big Sky opener against MSU, 61-55. Montana State held a 33-28 halftime lead on the strength of 50% shooting, but Eastern stayed close by forcing 12 turnovers in a first half in which MSU out-rebounded the Eagles 22-13 and limited the home team to just 33% shooting. EWU took its first second-half lead on a Mark Dunn layup at 14:18. Trey Gross' three-pointer and a jumper by Dunn stretched EWU's lead to five. Divaldo Mbunga's three-point play, and free throws by Erik Rush and Will Bynum helped MSU tie the game, but the Cats missed three of the six charity tosses in that stretch. The teams traded the lead until the 2:45 mark, when Andy Genao answered Danny Piepoli's three-pointer to give EWU a lead it wouldn't relinquish.
